

Market Overview

North American bond yields fell significantly, and the yield curve steepened over the last three months of 2023. The fourth quarter (Q4) started on the continuing theme of “higher-for-longer” interest rates and a general risk-off tone, but by mid-October, there was a material reversal on both fronts. The combination of several global monetary authorities hinting that rate hikes were coming to an end along with softer inflation and employment data caused markets to pivot towards lower rates. Central banks attempted to push back, but it did not stop the markets from pricing in multiple interest rate cuts starting in early 2024. At the end of the year, investors were looking for the U.S. Federal Reserve (“Fed”) to reduce rates by 158 basis points (bps) in 2024 to 3.75%, with the first 25 basis point cut built-in by March.

Global growth and inflation continued to decline throughout the quarter. However, U.S. growth has been stronger than expected all year led by a resilient consumer. Canadian growth was generally weak throughout 2023 as restrictive monetary policy hit both consumers and businesses. The unemployment rate has been drifting higher since the spring as labour market conditions continued to ease. The Bank of Canada (“BoC”) has kept its overnight rate at 5% since July. With the economy no longer operating in excess demand, inflation is expected to moderate further and move towards the 2% target over time. However, the BoC’s main concern is sticky inflation, and if this materializes, it is prepared to increase rates further. The 10-year Canada bond yields fell over 90 bps during the quarter. The market is expecting the BoC to begin cutting interest rates in April and to end the year with an overnight rate of 3.72%.

In this environment, mid-term Provincial spreads declined by 9 bps to 56 bps and corporate spreads narrowed by 19 bps to 161 bps.

Quarter in Review

Duration strategy helped as HAB was set up for lower rates. Carry and spread management also proved to be a strong contributor to performance.

Our sector allocation in Infrastructure and Energy were negative contributors to corporate performance, but this was offset by security selection, including within the Financials and Real Estate sub-sectors.

HAB’s weighted duration deviation on corporate bonds decreased from -0.03 years to -0.18 years. In the secondary market, HAB sold several names across the curve that had performed well and bought ones that were still attractive. The primary corporate market was very active, but HAB only participated in a few select issuers, which included Enbridge Gas, Federation des Caisses Desjardins and National Bank.

Outlook and Positioning

Major central banks are now likely finished hiking interest rates for this cycle. Monetary policy is restrictive and will lead to softer growth in 2024. The U.S. economy should operate below potential, but we now expect Canada to enter a shallow recession. Inflation has declined from very elevated levels over the past year and if it continues to fall, the BoC will become more confident in hitting its 2% inflation target, which will allow them to eventually begin the process of loosening monetary policy. The market is expecting multiple rate cuts in 2024, which will provide support in avoiding a hard landing in the economy. During the year, interest rates and credit spreads are expected to stay low, but we should see volatility and opportunities as central banks transition to interest rate cuts, elevated bond supply and geopolitical risks. While recent data has shown improvements on the inflation front, more work still needs to be done to support central banks’ changing policy. We expect the BoC and the Fed to lower interest rates in the range of 75 bps to 125 bps in 2024.

HAB Quarterly Commentary

Horizons Active Corporate Bond ETF (HAB)

Q4 2023

Investment grade credit spreads are still historically wide despite recent performance. HAB will remain active in this sector as opportunities present themselves. HAB has been focused on sectors that provide more compensation or are better positioned to weather a shallow recession. Trades over the last several months have generally been defensive in nature as HAB moved up in credit quality and bought shorter-dated securities. The yield carry from HAB's overweight in credit has increased to 23 bps from 18 bps.

Commissions, management fees and expenses all may be associated with an investment in the Horizons Active Corporate Bond ETF ("HAB" or the "ETF") managed by Horizons ETFs Management (Canada) Inc. The ETF is not guaranteed, its value changes frequently and past performance may not be repeated. The prospectus contains important detailed information about the ETF. Please read the relevant prospectus before investing.

Certain statements may constitute a forward-looking statement, including those identified by the expression "expect" and similar expressions (including grammatical variations thereof). The forward-looking statements are not historical facts but reflect the author's current expectations regarding future results or events. These forward-looking statements are subject to a number of risks and uncertainties that could cause actual results or events to differ materially from current expectations. These and other factors should be considered carefully and readers should not place undue reliance on such forward-looking statements. These forward-looking statements are made as of the date hereof and the authors do not undertake to update any forward-looking statement that is contained herein, whether as a result of new information, future events or otherwise, unless required by applicable law.

This communication is intended for informational purposes only and does not constitute an offer to sell or the solicitation of an offer to purchase exchange traded products (the "Horizons Exchange Traded Products") managed by Horizons ETFs Management (Canada) Inc. and is not, and should not be construed as, investment, tax, legal or accounting advice, and should not be relied upon in that regard. Individuals should seek the advice of professionals, as appropriate, regarding any particular investment. Investors should consult their professional advisors prior to implementing any changes to their investment strategies. These investments may not be suitable to the circumstances of an investor.

All comments, opinions and views expressed are generally based on information available as of the date of publication and should not be considered as advice to purchase or to sell mentioned securities. Before making any investment decision, please consult your investment advisor or advisors.